Developing An Integrated Forum Posting And Article Writing Strategy - PART ONE

You're probably aware as an internet marketer that good quality, relevant and unique content on your website is important to getting high search engine rankings for your chosen keywords.

However, engaging in online article marketing by posting articles on article directories is also important. And, another way to build quality backlinks and build your reputation is through forum posting.

The problem is that many internet marketers don't know where to start or how to make the best use of their time when it comes to these marketing strategies.

Writing articles and posting in forums are both excellent strategies, but they both take a lot of extra unnecessary time if you're not organized. I'll be sharing with you in this series of articles how to bring these two activities together into a strategy that will help you use your time more efficiently.
